

GwenLee
<gwenlee@darnfastnet.com>

To: opp-docket@epamail.epa.gov
cc: acode@pesticide.org
Subject: Help the ESA and Please curtail the pesticides!

02/24/2003 09:00 PM

To whom it may concern,

Pesticides are known to kill wildlife and there are numerous instances of impacts to endangered and threatened species from legal pesticide use. You know that this is true.

From my own experience, I know the EPA has allowed dangerous pesticides to remain on the market even after many instances of cancer and other health problems have been linked to them, as well as the hurt they cause wildlife.

It would be irresponsible of the National Marine Fisheries Service and the Fish and Wildlife Service, the agencies charged with endangered species protection, to defer to EPA to determine the effects of pesticides on endangered species.

Please do not weaken the standards! Please keep intact, and even better, strengthen the Endangered Species Act! Please find other ways of dealing with pests and weeds other than the insidious pesticides!

If we do not, then what will my grandchildren have to look forward to except poisoned waters, dirty air, and missing species?!

Sincerely,

Gwendolyn H. Lee

2822 S. 4375 W.

Ogden, UT 84401-9760

(801) 732-9641

gwenlee@darnfastnet.com